Subject: Chat with Caleb Pritchard
From: Caleb Pritchard <cpritchard2001@gmail.com>
To: barriticus@gmail.com

Caleb: "The money that was collected in Texas from corporations did not go to any individual campaigns in Texas. That money was sent to the Republican National Committee, where those kind of contributions are permissible, and the Republican National Committee sent it to states that allow such contributions. At the same time the Republican National Committee sent to Texas a similar amount that had been collected from individuals, in other words lawfully collected. It's not the same money, so there was no illegality in the beginning."
Caleb: Tom DeLay's lawyer on how the activity DeLay participated in wasn't money laundering.